Thrice-Weekly Kennebec Journal

During the approaching session of the Legislature, the undersigned will continue the publication of the THRICE WEEKLY JOURNAL, being Volume XII of the same.

The result of the recent election, and the political character of the majority of the members chosen to the Legislature, will give to the proceedings of the session a weighty intrinsic interest.—According to the avowed intentions of the dominant parties, the whole policy of the system of "Liquor Prohibition" will be brought under discussion, with the view of repealing the present statute, and enacting in its stead a law more in accordance with their views of practical wisdom. That this effort will give rise to a prolonged discussion, interesting to every citizen, and especially so to every friend of Temperance, no one can doubt. For this reason we shall spare no pains or expense in furnishing to our subscribers full and accurate reports of all that may be said and done in the Legislature. To do this, entails upon us a heavy cost, and a liberal subscription list is all that will save us from pecuniary loss.

In view of these facts, we look with confidence to our Republican friends throughout the State to aid us in obtaining subscribers. Especially do we solicit from each Republican member of the Legislature that personal effort in his locality, without which a remunerating list cannot be secured.

The numerous lines of railroad which now traverse the State in all directions, will enable a very large proportion of our subscribers to receive their papers a few hours after publication. This fact renders a subscription to the Thrice-Weekly more desirable and satisfactory than in former years.

The Thrice-Weekly Journal will be published on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings, alternating with the Thrice-Weekly Age, and thus furnishing a daily Legislative paper.

The price will be ONE DOLLAR for the session, as usual, payable in advance.

☞ It is desirable that the names of subscribers, accompanied with the money, may be forwarded at or before the commencement of the session.

Thrice-Weekly Age—1856.

This Legislative Journal will be issued as usual from the Age office, by the undersigned, every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, during the session of the Legislature to assemble on Wednesday, January 2, 1856. The change in the political complexion of affairs, and the important measures which will be acted upon, will render this an uncommonly interesting and exciting session.—We shall endeavor to give accurate accounts of all the proceedings, the services of faithful and reliable reporters having been secured to that end.

The reading matter of the Weekly Age will also be furnished subscribers to the Legislative paper during the period of its publication, and we shall take care to lay before our readers the latest intelligence from Congress, to whose deliberations unusual interest at this time attaches, as well as from Europe and the seat of war.

The price will be ONE DOLLAR for the session, payable in advance.

From Godey's Lady's Book.
"ONLY A FAMILY PARTY."
A Story for the New Year.
BY ALICE B. NEAL.
[CONCLUDED.]

Here was a poser. But Mrs. Cooper, quicker than her daughter in these little deceits which are called 'tact' in society, affected the mysterious—

'It would not do to spoil uncle's surprise. We shall have to wait and see.'

'Nine days!' sighed Miss Belmont. 'To-morrow is only the 24th. What are you going to do Christmas? We have only a stupid family party. I wish, Addy, that you and Mortimer would come around in the evening and help get up a dance.'

'Madeline would be delighted,' said Mrs. Cooper, quickly; 'and she could answer for Mortimer.' A family party at Belmont's?—What a step gained for her ingenious son! And how thoughtful in Uncle Mortimer to ask Mr. Livingston for New Years!

Miss Cooper volunteered to escort her friend home, that she might have the pleasure of passing by 197, and inspecting its outer glories at least. It never had seemed so imposing before; and, true enough, the workmen were busy fastening a silver door-plate engraved with 'Cooper,' to one of the richly carved panels.

'So odd in uncle! I long to see him, and find out all about it,' said the young lady, as she carried her report home to her expectant mamma.

'I should have thought he might have consulted us—at least our taste.' And Mrs. Cooper looked around her small, but elegant apartments, where every inch of room and every article of furniture were made the most of.

'But uncle has excellent taste,' said the younger lady, thinking of her diamond cross. 'We must certainly give a ball, mamma, as soon as we get fairly settled. I long for evening to come.'

But evening did not bring Mr. Cooper, nor even Christmas day, though he sent a pretty gift to each of the family, as he always had done, excusing himself on the plea of unusual haste in business. The whole week, in fact, the first since the death of Madeline's father, passed without so much as a call from him.

'He doesn't want to be teazed about the house,' said Mrs. Cooper, as Madeline commented on this unusual absence. 'You know how odd he always was, and he proposes to make the surprise as complete as possible.' But for all that, she had an undefined uneasiness she could not account for herself, and did not even mention to her children.

Mortimer Cooper, Jr., purported to be a lawyer by profession; but save the legal business of his relative, a very small share of 'practice' fell to his lot. The office was a comfortable smoking room. It had been handsomely fitted up by the ever kind uncle when he was first admitted to the bar, and was a capital lounging place for all 'the fellows' of his particular set. They talked over this singular 'palatial' freak of the Senior, with their feet on the grate, helping themselves from the graceful bronze cigar-stand on the mantle.

'I say, old boy, takes you right home, there by old Belmont's,' one of the party suggested.

'I wonder whose hat'll hang up in your place?' said another, leaning towards the honorable Charles Augustus.

'Gus is a clever fellow!' remarked his expectant brother-in-law, patronizingly.

'With a good look-out for the dimes,' said No. 1.

'All right now, though! 179 is a blessed reality. Gus don't like chateaux en espagne.'

'I say, Martin, will you hold your tongue?' growled Charles Augustus from the gothic book-case where he was consulting, not 'Purdon's Digest,' but a bound volume of the 'Spirit.' 'What kind of feed does the governor give, Mort?'

'Can't say; this is his first spread. Silver all comes from Ball's—Addy saw it there.' And so she had, by the merest accident on the world, and came with the wonderful news that it was the most superb set that she had ever laid eyes on.

Mrs. Cooper, with a true housekeeper's appreciation, looked contemptuously on the Sheffield coffee-urn, which already began to show marks of service. How she panted for the day to come that should place her at the head of this magnificent establishment. Miss Madeline had already commenced amusing her leisure moments in making out a party list, from which many of their present visitors were excluded. What would do for Ninth Street never would answer for Fifth Avenue.

But this was a daily and hourly remark with Mrs. Cooper; so much so that the servants began to boast of it to neighboring chambermaids and waiters as a settled thing, until the removal of the Mark Coopers became an on dit with their respective masters and mistresses.

As 'birds of the air' are never wanting to 'tell the matter,' it was not long coming to Mr. Mortimer Cooper's ears; but that worthy gentleman apparently saw no harm in popular preoccupation of his establishment, for he only shrugged his shoulders in silence, and worked the faster to get it thoroughly complete in every detail.

Very complete it was! Mrs. Mark Cooper exclaimed at every step, when she was conducted through it on the eventful New Year's day, far exceeding her most boundless imaginations. They were invited at five, but took the liberty of coming an hour earlier to inspect the house by daylight, as Uncle Mortimer evidently expected they would. He received them in the marble-paved hall in a most elaborate costume, in honor of the occasion, his shirt-frill half an inch wider than usual, Addy declared to her brother; but then its old-fashioned diamond brooch was of almost priceless value.

Mr. Cooper had exercised a fine taste, cramped by no narrow expenditure. They confessed to themselves, as they passed from room to room of the magnificent suite, they could not have improved anything if they had been consulted. The second floor was also fitted up in suites, one so plainly intended for Addy that she could hardly help thanking their generous relative on the spot—this time seriously—for his attention to her tastes and pursuits. There was the morning-room, a perfect gem of a boudoir, hung with ruby damask, bordered by blue and gold—pictures, cabinets, a piano-forte, though there was a magnificent instrument that she longed to run her hands over in the drawing room; the dressing room opening from it with wardrobes that looked like one massive mirror, set in a delicately carved rose-wood frame; the bed-chamber separated only by a curtain of lace and rose-colored silk. The very best drawing-room in Ninth Street, even in its best days, would not compare with that chamber.

'And how is this for a gay young bachelor?' said Mr. Cooper, opening the door of the adjoining suite.

Mortimer, Jr., was in ecstacies; nothing but a warning look from his mother prevented a volley of thanks; but he pulled up his collar, and examined his hair from right to left, before the superb dressing glass, with visible satisfaction.

'We old people must be content to take a higher flight,' Mr. Cooper remarked, as they reached the second staircase.

It was now Mrs. Mark's turn to bridle and look conscious. Wasn't it as good as saying, 'all this belongs to you and your children?' and she felt a fresh curiosity to inspect her own apartments. But just as they set foot on the stairs a loud peal announced other guests, and they hastened to the drawing-room to receive them.

Mrs. Mark did the honors quite naturally and Addy found time to whisper to Miss Belmont, 'You should see my rooms; they are superb!' before they were summoned to the dining-room.

Here also was a blaze of light and splendor. Mr. Cooper had attested his title as millionaire in the rich appointments. Mrs. Mark was unconsciously tending towards her seat as mistress of the mansion, when she noticed plates were laid for eight, yet only six were present.

'Ah,' said Mr. Cooper, as if understanding the involuntary pause, 'one moment.' And the 'family party' had scarcely time to look at each other before he returned with a young lady in deep mourning upon his arm, and followed by a gentleman, whose calm self-possession was in strong contrast to the mien of the rest.

'Allow me to introduce my daughter, Miss Emily Cooper—my son, Mortimer Cooper, Jr.,—just returned from their travels. My dear Mrs. Mark your niece; she will take her place at the head of my table, if you will permit her. Mortimer, shake hands; your cousin, my namesake. Only a family party, my dear. Miss Belmont and Mr. Livingston will provide so well for your cousins that they will not miss any little diversion your appearance may make from their shares of Uncle Mort's property!'

It was quite a long speech for Mr. Cooper, who rubbed his hands at the conclusion after the true stage-papa fashion, and the tableau would have done no discredit to the foot-lights of the Broadway or Wallack's; though it certainly was not acting; for, however artificial most of the party might be in ordinary, their surprise and consternation on this occasion were genuine.

'Perhaps you don't exactly understand it, Mrs. Mark. These are poor Emily's children; a better wife never man had, or better children than she made these. Family interference isn't much use, after all, is it?'

It was well that the soup made its appearance at this critical period, for all the party were too well bred to continue a scene before servants. The young gentlemen bowed to each other with the most studied politeness, and Madeline could not help acknowledging to herself that her new cousin was remarkably pretty in spite of her close mourning, and perfectly lady-like. The ordeal of doing the honors at such a table sufficiently proved the last, however low her birth might be.—Mrs. Mark found no refuge from her chagrin there, or in watching her nephew in contrast to her own son, who certainly lost by the comparison.

As for Miss Belmont and Mr. Livingston, their sole refuge from the contretemps of such a family dinner was in exchanging meaning glances by stealth at the utter confusion of the Mark Coopers, and took leave as soon as possible after they rose from the table.

"A charming little explanation going on there," said Charles Augustus, pointing over his shoulder to the drawing room. "Sly old chap that! Quite romantic, 'pon my honor."

"I never was so thunderstruck," returned Miss Belmont, poising one slippered foot on the lower step of her father's house. "Do come in and talk it over."

Mr. Livingston was not slow in responding to such a cordial invitation. Whether it occurred to him on the spot to profit by his friend's mishap, we cannot well say; but, by the end of the season, Charles Augustus visited the Belmonts without invitation, and was made perfectly at home by his fiance.

Mrs. Mark Cooper understood the facts of the case much better than her children, when the explanation was made; though how her brother-in-law had managed to conceal his marriage with the pretty dress-maker, Emily Talbut, from any member of the family was an ingenuity beyond her conception. The outwardly odd and crusty bachelor, Mortimer Cooper, was in reality the most exemplary of husbands in his modest home, and his children, though highly educated, never knew that they had claim to any other.

He loved them; but he had a share of the family pride of birth, which had made him look upon his brother's children, as his ostensible heirs. He knew there would be quite enough to provide handsomely for his family into the bargain. But their mother's death had made him, for the first time, feel what had been due to her, and what were her children's right in claims; and while he hesitated between this and custom, and the world's opinion, the memorable evening of the ball decided him.

Mr. Mortimer Cooper was very slow in believing the reality of his niece's repentance, and the warm attachment she expressed for her cousin Emily; but he forgave her after a time, so much so as to consent to receive her for a daughter-in-law. The family party was once more reunited, and, though her son was never entirely reconciled at losing the second story apartments, Mrs Mark had the satisfaction of issuing her "AT HOMES" from 197 Fifth Avenue.

TO CURE FELONS.—Within the past year we have known the spinal marrow of an ox or a cow applied by three different persons, with the most satisfactory results, in relieving the pain and securing speedy cures of their felons. This, we are confident, will be useful information to many. The spinal marrow should be applied fresh every four hours for two days.—Scientific American.

APPOINTMENT BY THE GOVERNOR AND COUNCIL. Our readers will be pleased to learn that Dr. Thomas H. Brown, of Paris, has been nominated and unanimously confirmed for the office of Judge of Probate for the County of Oxford, in place of Hon. Timothy Ludden, resigned. A more competent man, or one better suited to fill the office could not be found.—Oxford Democrat.

Republican Legislative Caucus.

The Republican members of the Legislature are requested to meet in Concert Hall, opposite the Mansion House, Tuesday evening, January 1, at 7 o'clock.

Augusta, Dec. 31, 1855.

Meeting of the Legislature.

The Thirty-fifth Legislature of Maine will commence its session at Augusta, on Wednesday the 2d of January. There is not a remarkable degree of interest manifested in its doings, considering the fact that its political complexion is so different from that of the last Legislature.

The question as to who, is to be Governor, and by whom the offices are to be enjoyed, is one upon which curiosity is felt, to be sure,—but the particular distribution is not regarded as an exceedingly important matter by the people at large—inasmuch as Hunkerism, of one stripe or the other, will take them all. The Democratic and Strait Whig alliance has thrown the moral influence of the State into the opposite scale from that of last year;—and this mischief being done, it matters little what they do with the offices.

It is quite certain that Judge Wells will be Governor—notwithstanding the strong assurances which were given before election to some of the Strait Whigs, that in case they could get a balance of power in the Legislature, Mr. Reed's chances would be the best. The Strait Whigs have this balance between the democrats and the Republicans—but we hear not a word from either of their organs about adhering to the Strait Whig candidate. Scarcely a word has been said by them, upon the Governor question, since the election—and all the indications are that Mr. Reed will be abandoned, in the Legislature, with or without his own consent; and that the political leaders will go in "straight" for Judge Wells, without a single qualm of conscience. These gentlemen are accustomed to refer with a great show of indignation, to "desertions" from the Whig candidate last year. We shall see whether they are faithful themselves, this year, when, by a faithful adherence to Mr. Reed he may be elected.

It is understood that the organization of the Houses is conceded to the Strait Whigs—that Hon. Josiah S. Little of Portland is to be made Speaker by a fusion vote—and that the Straits are desirous of having Geo. C. Getchell, Esq., accept the Clerkship, but that that gentleman having fixed his regards on the Land Office, will have that place or nothing.

It is quite certain that the Straits will not be behindhand in asking; and in this connection we may mention that Abraham Sanborn, Esq., of this city, is spoken of for the place of Attorney General; and as it would be an appointment highly acceptable to the "Liberals" it may be conceded.

It is said to be a settled matter that Hon. Amos M. Roberts of this city, succeeds to the Treasury Department.

In regard to the county offices,—if Governor Wells assumes (as we suppose he will) to remove the present incumbents from offices which have been made elective by the Constitution—it is said the arrangement agreed upon is, that in democratic localities democrats shall be appointed, and in Strait Whig localities, the Whigs shall be considered. By this rule, the modicum to the Strait Whigs would be sufficiently small—but we nevertheless hear of hungry democrats in such localities, who refuse to listen to any such agreement. If the rule prevails, it is evident that the fond hopes of the former Strait Whig incumbents in this county, will be blasted. They will at least be entitled to the sympathy of the Republicans who may be ousted.

As to the legislation of the coming session, we suppose the most redoubtable achievement will be to undo all that was done at the last Legislature—except upon the liquor law, where something more is looked for by the Liberals. Upon this question, the democratic organs have been a good deal exercised. They are aware that something is expected, in the shape of a new law—but just what to recommend, bothers them decidedly, and they have for the most part confined themselves to generalities, without venturing to specify any particular substitute for the "Maine Law." The Augusta Age is about the only paper among the political organs which has had the courage to recommend anything in particular. The plan that the editor "indicated," (out of three which he suggests) is as follows:

To substitute for the old law a new enactment, the distinguishing features of which shall be, the authorizing of cities, towns, &c., to license one or more apothecaries, or other persons, to sell for medicinal, mechanical and sacramental purposes within their respective limits, and to license all respectable taverners, in such city, town, &c. (who make application and give the required bond) to sell to their guests and to none others—license fee to be low and the bond high; so as not on the one hand to make it necessary for the licensed vender to sell largely in order to indemnify himself pecuniarily, and on the other hand, to ensure probity and fidelity in the agent, as few who are deficient in these requisites could obtain high bonds, but might be able to pay a high license. All except licensed persons to be forbidden to sell, under appropriate penalties.

The licensing of all "respectable taverners" to sell to their "guests," would work beautifully, no doubt, and would increase the number of "guests" amazingly—but it strikes us the plan would not be very popular with many who desire to sell, and yet have not the good fortune to be "taverners." Although the Age's plan would open a wide door for the traffic, still the twenty thousand ultra "Liberals" who have given the Age's party its victory, will be contented with no such partial law. The gates must be opened wide and without any obstructions, to satisfy them. In proof of this, we copy the following remarks from the Portland Expositor of Dec. 29th—being part of a leading article, setting forth the duty of the Legislature to sweep away the last vestige of prohibition:

The Expositor says:

Now we boldly say that no tampering policy on this subject will be tolerated, much less approved by the people of Maine.

The odium of having originated this gulley system of legislation is upon them; and the glory of first wiping out such legislation, the people of the State at the last election, intended to achieve. And woe be to that politician who shall stand before the people with the treachery fastened upon him, of having, in any degree winked at the further preservation of a solitary provision of the existing Maine Law. There's no one act of omission or of commission, now capable of perpetration, that would so effectually damn all popular confidence in the State Senators and Representatives elect, as a single day of hesitancy upon this subject. In the popular mind it stands first and foremost for legislative action. Let not the popular mind be betrayed, or disappointed, nor the majesty of it be derided by pusillanimous counsels. The people have led off, and party politicians should be advised and admonished by this expression of the people.

The Age will accordingly "take warning."

ZAIDEE: A Romance. Boston: John P. Jewett & Co.

This beautiful English romance, published originally, in numbers in Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, and first issued in this country in Littell's Living Age, is now presented complete, in neat form and at a low price, by the above publishers. It is one of the best written novels we have ever read. Zaidee is a perfect gem of a character.

THE COMMUNION SABBATH. By Nehemiah Adams, D. D., Pastor of Essex St. Church.—Boston: John P. Jewett & Co.

This volume, from a devout and excellent divine, is intended as "the Communicant's companion," but in many parts is calculated to be interesting and useful as the author intended "to those who leave the house of worship when the Lord's Supper is to be administered." It presents in an impressive manner, Christ's sufferings and sacrifice for the benefit of humanity—the miracles at the crucifixion—the membership of believers in Christ,—and other topics of a kindred nature. The volume is beautifully printed, and bound in a very neat style.

THE BIBLE HISTORY OF PRAYER, with Practical Reflections. By Charles A. Goodrich. Boston: John P. Jewett & Co.

The author informs us that this volume was suggested by a manuscript given some years since to Rev. Samuel G. Whittlesey, on his departure as a missionary to Ceylon, by a young lady, (now Mrs. S. G. Ashton of Newburyport.) The manuscript contained all the passages in the Bible pertaining to prayer,—and the author has retained, so far as his space would permit, nearly all the passages it contained. The title of the book, "The Bible History of Prayer," is therefore most appropriate. The object is "to endeavor to impart all possible interest to an important but neglected subject."

As a gift book from a religious friend nothing could be more appropriate.

THE VESTRY; or The Will and To Do. By Jeanie De Witt. Illustrated. New York: Derby & Davenport. 1856.

We have not had time to examine this book, but perceive that it is highly recommended as conveying great moral truths, through the medium of an interesting and amusing work of fiction. It is written by a daughter of Rev. Dr. Dowling, of Philadelphia, which fact ought to be a guarantee for something above the ordinary class of novels. We have no doubt that the character and influence of the book are of an elevated and beneficial nature.

The New York Evening Post states that intelligence was received by the last steamer, at the State Department at Washington, confirming the reports from its Paris correspondent in reference to the withdrawal of the Allies from the Crimea.

There are now laid up in winter quarters at Chicago two hundred and eighteen steamers and sailcraft, representing carrying room for sixty thousand tons. These ships and steamers will all leave with full loads for eastern ports in the spring.

There are 100,000 lawyers, 60,000 clergymen, 1,800 editors, 80,000 teachers, and 40,000 physicians, in the United States.

NEW EXPRESS FOR BOSTON.—Our readers will notice the advertisement of the "Merchant's Express," in another column,—which is prepared to carry packages, &c. by railroad, and deliver them with accuracy and promptness. Mr. McMurtrie, the proprietor, is extensively known in our city—having been formerly clerk of the Steamer Penobscot. Mr. H. H. Edwards, recently of Edwards & Co's Express, is the Agent in Bangor.

ECONOMY IN GAS BURNING.—A friend mentions a remarkable instance of the saving that may be effected by strict attention and economy in the burning of gas. He says the consumer alluded to invariably makes his meter away a leetle the other way in the long run—and brings the gas company in debt to him about thirty-five cents every quarter.

NEW YEAR'S DAY.—The Carriers of the Whig and Courier will present their annual Address this morning, to the patrons of the paper. It is hoped the hard times will not cause the withholding of the usual quarters.

In accordance with established custom, no paper will be issued from our office to-morrow morning.

THE WESTERN MAIL.—We learn from Mr. Thompson, Mail Route Agent, that the western mail, to and from this city, will be carried by contract on the Pen. & Ken. Railroad, on and after to-day, Jan. 1, 1856,—leaving this city by the 7.45 A. M. train, and arriving by the 7.15 P. M. train.

We are indebted to Hon. Israel Washburn for Vol. I. of the "Reports of Explorations and Surveys to ascertain the most practicable and economical route for a Railroad to the Pacific." It contains 632 large quarto pages, and is mostly devoted to Gov. Stevens' Report upon the Northern Route.

The Fifth Lecture of the Mercantile Course (and first of the Intermediate,) will be delivered this (Tuesday) evening by Rev. F. W. Hedge, of Providence. The subject of Mr. Hedge's four lectures, is Mediæval History.

THE HATCH HOUSE has been taken by Mr. Nathan Perry, Jr., who has had experience in his business, and will be found an excellent landlord.

The house will be thrown open for company to-day, (New Year's.)

THE DWINEL HOUSE. Mr. Brown, the well known and popular landlord, gives a collation to his friends and the public, this evening, at his new quarters in the Dwinel House.

THE $50,000 ROBBERY.—Oliver King and Wm. C. Ayer, two of the parties charged with the great robbery of U. S. gold from the Express Company have been surrendered to a New York officer, on an Executive warrant.

Additional Foreign Items by the Pacific.

Eleven Russian infantry divisions are now in the Crimea, two having gone north. Prince Gortschakoff has extensively fortified the Tchongar road by batteries.

The Russians were concentrating their forces at Batchi Serai and Simpheropol.

Most of the English and Ottoman cavalry had arrived at Constantinople, where they will remain during the winter.

The Allies had fortified Kinburn, and consider it equal to any attack that can possibly be made.

The French lines at Kamiesch were nearly completed on a magnificent scale.

St. Petersburg advices say that a vast train of sleighs had entered the Crimea by the Perekop road, with provisions, stores, &c.; also that the Allies have 26 batteries ready to attack the northern forts, and 360 guns in position on the Tchernaya.

Both the English Commissioner and Omar Pacha's Envoy had failed in their negotiations with the Circassians, the chiefs refusing to leave the mountains for the purpose of making an attack upon Georgia.

Most of the Allied fleet had passed Elsinore, homeward bound.

Breadstuffs were quiet and unchanged. Provisions were generally without change. Sugar was somewhat lower.

Messrs. Baring Brothers report iron quiet, and a shade easier. Money in good demand at unchanged rates.

American stocks without quotable change, perhaps less active.

Consols closed in London on the 14th at 88½.

AN EXTRAORDINARY ROBBERY.—The Chicago papers report an extensive robbery in that city. A young man by the name of Hickox, who has been employed for a number of years in the establishment of Isaac Speer, of Chicago, has been in the habit for years of perpetrating systematic robberies on his employer, and deliberately investing the avails in real estate in the city. He had thus purchased, among other property, two valuable lots of land, on each of which he paid $6000 down and mortgaged the land for the remainder, and had even begun to build a large hotel on one of these lots which was to cost from ten to eighteen thousand dollars. He had been kind enough to loan his employer about $2000, on a house and lot of land. He had in fact stolen a handsome fortune from Mr. Speer; and all this time, it would seem, retained his confidence, and received pay for valuable services rendered to his employer. The roguery was finally discovered, but not in season to arrest the rogue, for, becoming suspicious, he had suddenly converted some of his real estate into money and fled.

A RELIC OF SEBASTOPOL.—A vessel recently arrived here from Constantinople brought an interesting relic of the famous siege of Sebastopol. To gratify the sight of the curious it has been left at the Merchants' Reading Room. The relic is a cap formerly belonging to a Russian artillery man, who was probably either killed or wounded at the siege. It is made of leather, having the form of an ancient helmet, and bears on its front two ornamental cannon, and from the top of the cap is raised some four or five inches a pointed piece of white metal. This interesting relic, fresh from the walls of Sebastopol, is suggestive of many reminiscences of that remarkable place.—Boston Journal.

THE GOOD TIME COMING.—The indications at the present moment are highly favorable for a prosperous new year. The war in Europe will no doubt speedily terminate. The New York Mirror, taking a hopeful view of the future, says:—

"With the return of Peace, we may look for a year of Jubilee in the commercial and industrial worlds. England will apply the steam to her million looms; and France and Austria and Russia will vie with each other in swelling the products of agriculture and the peaceful arts. Our own country will reap fresh benefit from the quickened activity of European commerce. Cotton will advance in consequence of increased consumption; freights will advance in consequence of the increased interchange of both the raw and the manufactured articles; emigration will take a fresh start on the disbanding of the war-worn armies; and every branch of industry and trade will feel the reviving influence of the sunshine of peace."—Boston Chronicle.

NEW CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH IN PORTLAND. On the 26th an Ecclesiastical Council convened at Portland of which Dr. Dwight was moderator, to consider the request of Manthano Pickering and twenty one others, addressed to the State Street Church, for letters of dismission from said church, and recommendation, for the purpose of organizing a new Orthodox Congregational Church in some needy portion of the growing city. This request had been refused by the State Street Church. One of the grounds, the principal one, of the refusal was because of certain allegations said to have been brought against the pastor of the State Street Church. Nothing of these appeared in the papers submitted, and inasmuch as the church had not deemed them of sufficient importance to make them the subject of inquiry and discipline, the council decided to grant the request of the petitioners.

DEATH BY THE ABSORPTION OF POISON FROM FURS.—We learn from the Albany Knickerbocker, that Andrew McGuire died on Wednesday from the following singular cause:—He burnt his hand a week ago while finishing up a hat for his employer, Mr. Cottell. The wound being slight, he paid but little attention to it, and continued his work. Last Thursday he was at work on a lot of furs. He continued at this during the day. When he went home he found that his hand was much worse. From the hand the swelling passed into his arm, and from his arm into his body. For the last two days he suffered terribly. The poison was doubtless obtained from a piece of fur—the skin of some animal which had been preserved. Such skins are saturated with arsenic and other deadly poisons; for this reason they should never be sold for the purpose of being made up into wearing apparel.—Boston Chronicle.

WHERE THE M. C.'S GET THEIR FUNDS.—It would seem by the following from the Baltimore Clipper's Washington correspondence that the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is the real obstacle in the way of electing a Speaker:—

"Mr. A. J. Glossbrenner, the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives, has paid to the members from his own resources, twenty-eight thousand dollars. But for this, the 'Honorables' would have been put to much inconvenience, as no money can be drawn from the U. S. Treasury for this purpose, except by order of the Speaker, and one, it is known everywhere, has not yet been elected."

GREAT WEIGHT OF ICE ON THE TREES.—A gentleman of this city weighed a branch of a tree that had been broken by the weight of ice upon it, and found that it weighed eleven pounds. The ice was then melted off, and the branch weighed only half a pound! This great proportion of ice accounts for the destruction of trees and branches in this vicinity.—Hartford Times.

An exchange says: "A little child of our acquaintance was rendered seriously ill, last week, by chewing a handsome enameled ticket, which its mother had given it to play with. For the benefit of those who do not know, we would state that the enamel on these cards contains arsenic!"

DR HOLMES.—The Lowell News says that Dr. Holmes lectured in [illegible] city on Wednesday evening, and endeavored to soften down his New York speech by conciliatory explanations, brought into his lecture on Critics and Criticism in a side-wise manner.

HEAVY BUSINESS.—It is stated that the daily sales of A. T. Stewart & Co., for the last week have amounted to from $75,000 to $95,000.—With the latter sum, it is said, the head of the house was not satisfied. He thought it should have reached $100,000.—New York paper.

A correspondent of the State of Maine says the editorship of the Boston Courier has been offered to Geo. Lunt, United States District Attorney under Fillmore, and that it is probable the offer will be accepted.

Hon. Joseph B. Wells, of Chicago, Illinois, died in New York on the evening of the 26th. Mr. Wells was a native of New Hampshire, and brother of Hon. Samuel Wells of Maine, and John S. Wells of New Hampshire.

The richest member of the present Congress is William Aiken of South Carolina. His property is valued at two millions of dollars, including over one thousand negroes!

THE BICKFORD.

A Piscatory Poem.

Dedicated to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Bangor, and vicinage.

NEW YEAR'S, 1856.

"As inward love breeds outward talk,
The hound some praise, and some the hawk;
Some, better pleased with private sport,
Use tennis; some a mistress court;
But these delights I neither wish
Nor envy, while I [sell my] fish."
Isaak Walton.

Ye banks of bonnie Kenduskeag,
Well may ye bloom so bright and fair;
Well may the hungry leap for joy,
For BICKFORD keeps a Market there!
And feasts their eyes with shiney Cod,
That do, each day his Stall adorn,
Reminding them of chowder days,
That can't too frequently return.

Oft have we roved by Kenduskeag,
Ranged NORUMBEGA o'er and o'er,
But never saw a Fish-Dealer
That had of Fish so fine a store:
The OYSTER plump—the LOBSTER red,
The SALMON, in its season, fine,
The ALEWIFE and the silver SHAD,
On which we often love to dine.

The PICKEREL, the PERCH, the TROUT,
The TOGUE, the HALIBUT so sweet,
The HADDOCK, HERRING, HAKE and CLAM,
And every fish we love to eat;
Each, in its season finds its way
To Mr. Thomas Bickford's Stall,
Where that good fellow loves to stay,
And wait upon us when we call.

Renowned is he both near and far;
The ancients prophesied his fame;
E'en Eve foretold her famous son,
Though she had not in mind his name,
To Adam she—"Far, far adown
In Time's long vista, I behold
A modest youth who deals in Fish,
Yea, Oysters, worth their weight in gold."

Her spouse replied, "I see, I see!
What crowds do throng his tempting Stall!
His genial face, and winning ways,
Allure the people one and all.
Henceforth be his the fish that swim,
In brooklet, river, lake or sea,
And by his name let them be called
From July to eternity."

Grim Neptune heard the doting pair,
And straight resolved a name to give
To the great Fish-man who would own
The food on which his race should live.
He bade the dolphins and they sung,
"Our Thomas Bickford he shall be;
We'll yield our lives with joy to him,
For his the treasures of the sea."

When Alexander conquered all,
And mourned he could not conquer more,
He put the goblet to his lips,
And red wine down his throat did pour—
"Oh for the days" he sadly sighed,
"When hostile states before me lay,
Cold water then did quench my thirst,
And Bickford's fish my hunger stay."

When Cornwallis gave up his sword
To the immortal Washington,
Quoth he, "You've conquered, noble chief,
Pray tell me how the thing was done?"
To whom the chief, "My troops are brave,
Love country and love codfish too,
With these within them they will strive
Impossibilities to do.

"Your British troops are brave enough,
Will stand and fight unto the death,
But so unwieldly in their bulk,
They very soon get out of breath;
Roast beef and beer so swell them up,
Fatigue they cannot long endure,
My men with Bickford's Codfish fed,
Would whip them smartly I was sure."

Napoleon the Great, confined
To St Helena's rocky isle,
But once, and only once, 'tis said,
In his retreat was seen to smile:
Gazing upon the briny deep,
He laughed and said, "Oh grant this wish,
That first, each day, shall grace my board
A course of Bickford's luscious fish."

So Jackson bold, at New Orleans,
Before the British troops he slew,
Jumped on a cotton bag and cried—
"Give me, this day, a Bickford Stew!"
The army raised a shout of joy,
But the Kentucks they shouted louder—
"Give him a stew, but give us more,
Give us our fill of Bickford's Chowder!"

'Twas done; the glorious end you know,
The British varlets bit the dust,
Old Hick supported by the stew,
Did with the foe his very most.
"Know ye that Bickford's underneath?"
The mighty hero loudly cried—
"Inspired by him, Kentuck and I,
Can whip you and the world beside!"

So, too, when General Pellessier
Had conquered strong Sebastopol,
And saw the allied standards wave
Above that city's battered wall—
He looked across the broad Euxine,
And holding up a pewter dish
Cried he, "Oh, Cook, to day I'll dine
Upon a lot of Bickford's fish!"

And Gortschakoff exclaimed, amazed,
"The secret now I understand—
The Allies it is plain to see,
Are helped by that brave Bickford's hand.
Their troops are fed on Bickford Fish,
On Bickford Chowders, Bickford Stews,
And while his name is in their mouths,
To try to beat them is no use."

Kind, gentle friends, pray think awhile,
How much to Bickford we do owe!
Our patronage is all he wants,
To give it we will not be slow;
For should he starve without our aid,
We'll starve without his dainty Fish.
All starved, the mourning world would say—
"How cruel, and how heathenish!"

Men of repute, who saw his worth,
Have raised a palace known to fame,
For BICKFORD and the rest of earth,
And NOROMBEGA is its name.
We'll grave their names upon its walls,
And con them daily o'er and o'er,
As we shall march beneath its halls
To STALL THIRTEEN, the Western door!

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, Dec 31.

HOUSE.—In the House this morning Sydney Webster, Private Secretary of the President entered announcing a written message. Great excitement ensued

Mr Clingman moved that it be read

Mr. Morgan called for the ayes and nays, and several members struggled fiercely to get the floor

SENATE.—A message from the President was read. He stated that his convictions of duty will not permit him any longer to delay giving to Congress information on the state of the Union and recommending such measures as he judges necessary or expedient.

Abstract of the President's Message.

The President commences by giving a history of Central American affairs in particular. He also refers to the recent troubles in Kansas, and says the people must be protected in the exercise of their rights and without the interference on the part of the people of other States and commends the subject to the early attention of Congress. He eulogises Popular Sovereignty, gives a history of the formation of the Union, and expatiates on State rights, with particular reference to slavery and the fugitive slave law. The President regards the agitation of Slavery as dangerous to the durability of the Union, & regrets to see the States disregard their constitutional obligations, and refuse to obey the laws of Congress

He denies that the South has obtained advantages over the north in the federal government, and proceeds to refer to the ordinance of 1787 and the acquisition of Louisiana, and to illustrate the balance of power between freedom and slavery. He comes down to the annexation of Texas and the repeal of the Missouri compromise and argues that the South have got no more than belongs to her.

He gives an elaborate defence of the principles of the Nebraska bill and indignantly denies that it is a breach of faith

The President refers to grave questions pending with some foreign powers, the most important of which is that with Great Britain, arising out of the Nicaragua question. It was an understanding with the U S in making the treaty that all the present States of the former Central American republic, would then celebrate complete independence, also that the contracting parties engaged equally and to some extent for the present and future, that neither of them had any claim or right in Central America, such claim or right was unreservedly relinquished by the stipulations of the Convention, and no dominion thereafter would be exercised in any part of Central America by Great Britain or the U S. This gov't consented to these restrictions in regard to a region of country wherein we had specific and peculiar interests only upon the conviction that like restrictions were in some sense obligatory on Great Britain

But for this understanding the treaty would never have been concluded by us. Great Britain so construes the contention as to maintain unchanged all her previous pretensions over the Mosquito coast. These pretensions are founded on the assumption of political relations between Great Britain and the remnant of Indians on that coast, entered into at a time when the whole country was a colonial possession of Spain. It cannot be successfully controverted, that by the public law of both Europe and America, no possible act of such Indians, or of their predecessors, could confer on Great Britain any political rights. It however becomes apparent that Great Britain still continued in exercise of large authority in all that part of Central America called the Mosquito Coast covering the entire length of Nicaragua and part of Costa Rica. This act of Great Britain being contrary to the rights of the States of Central America, as understood by this government, has been made the subject of negotiation through our Minister at London. Great Britain has by repeated and successive treaties renounced all pretensions of her own, and recognized the full and sovereign rights of Spain in the most unequivocal terms. Great Britain now re-asserts her right to that extent of the Gulf coast on the Eastern coast of Nicaragua.

The interference of Great Britain, though exerted once in the form of military occupation of the port of San Juan del Norte, now presents a claim of right of protectorate over the Mosquito Indians

After stating that recruiting stations had been established in the U. S. by the complicity of British civil and military officers, he says these considerations and the fact that the cause of complaint was not a mere casual occurrence but a deliberate design, conducted by responsible public functionaries impelled me to present the case to the British Government. The subject is still under discussion, the result of which will be communicated in due time

Of the International difficulty in regard to the late recruiting by Great Britain, he says the traditional policy of the U S is not to interfere with belligerents. Such being the public rights of the U S, no solicitude was felt until Parliament passed an act to provide for the enlistment of a foreign legion. It was a matter of surprise therefore to find persons engaged in the U. S. in this business. The ordinary steps were immediately taken to arrest and punish the parties concerned. The matter acquires additional importance by a disclosure of the fact that these enlistments were prosecuted upon a plan devised by official authority.

In the Senate after the reading of the message, a debate sprung up upon the Central American question, in which Clayton, Seward, Weller, Cass and others participated. The ground taken by the President being generally endorsed.

Adjourned till Thursday

HOUSE.—In the House after a very animated debate, and much confusion it was decided 87 against 126 that the message should not be read, and the whole subject was laid on the table

Adjourned till Wednesday.

More Trouble in Kansas.

ST LOUIS, 28th

The Lexington Mo Herald of 22d says, "On the 15th the Free State Constitution of the Topeka Convention was voted for when a collision occurred at Leavenworth between the pro and anti slavery parties. The ballot boxes were destroyed by the mob, voting stopped and an anti-slavery man's house burned. A person charged with the last outrage was arrested and lodged in jail. His friends broke open the jail, rescued the prisoner, and then burned down the building

Great excitement existed, and both sides had sent for assistance

SECOND DESPATCH

CHICAGO, 31st.

A letter from Westport dated the 18th says that on election day the border Missourians mobbed various voting places on the Missouri river and at several places would not allow the polls to be opened. A large mob destroyed the ballot boxes at Leavenworth, and maltreated the judges of election.

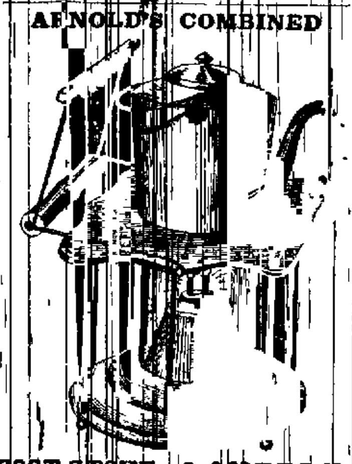
ARNOLD'S COMBINED



FOOT-STOVE LANTERN,

AND

NURSE-LAMP.

ALBERT NOYES having purchased the exclusive right for manufacturing and vending in Penobscot county, the above valuable invention is now prepared to offer them to the public.

As a FOOT STOVE it answers an excellent purpose as it can be sufficiently heated in less than one minute to warm and dry the feet in the coldest weather, and will be found to be an indispensable article in traveling It is heated by an oil, alcohol or fluid lamp the flame of which is protected from every external object

As a LANTERN it answers all the usual purposes, and is less liable to be overset, or get broken, and can be used as a house lamp, with equal advantage.

As a NURSE LAMP, and in cases of sickness, it is of great advantage in keeping drinks or medicines warm beside giving the light desired, and for cooking in small quantities For making tea, &c., it will be found very convenient, as a quart of water can be boiled in fifteen minutes and a flat iron heat in the same length of time

In fact the various purposes to which this neat apparatus can be put may be readily conjectured by every one No further description is required, as no one can misunderstand its general utility. To say any thing more respecting its adaptability to a hundred purposes would just be telling what our readers can all see at once for themselves

Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla,

—FOR—

Purifying the Blood removing all diseases arising from Excess of Mercury, exposure and imprudence in life, chronic constitutional disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Scald head Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Tetter, Pimples on the Face, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin

It is gratifying to the proprietor of these medicines to be able to state that it is now nearly three years since they were first introduced, during which time they have been extensively used in various parts of the United States, and have given to patient and practitioner the highest degree of satisfaction in the various cases in which they have been employed, whether in town, country, hospital, or private practice, they have invariably given the most decided and unequivocal satisfaction and produced the most salutary and beneficial effects. Numerous letters have been received from the most distinguished physicians in the country, and from the professors of several medical colleges, recommending in the highest terms the value of these medicines and their superiority over all other preparations for such complaints as the proprietor recommends Numerous preparations of Sarsaparilla and Buchu and various modes of preparing them have been given, all of which of course will differ according to the mode of preparation which each individual may adopt

These medicines require considerable care in the preparation and the employment of different menstruum in successive operation to take up the extractive matters, and, in consequence, are most frequently improperly made and not unfrequently much impaired, if not rendered totally inert by the injudicious and unskillful management of those unacquainted with pharmaceutical preparations It is therefore of the highest consideration and importance to the public and to the faculty that there should be standard preparations of uniform strength and possessing the most advantages To effect this, and obviate the evil alluded to I have made a number of experiments to ascertain the most effectual mode of extracting the virtues of the Sarsaparilla and the Buchu, and to discover the most eligible form for their exhibition The experiments have resulted most favorably and, it is with much pleasure I now offer to the public and the faculty my Compound Fluid Extracts, which contain all the virtues of the articles they are represented to be made from in a highly concentrated form and are the most active preparations which can be made Two tablespoonsfull of the Extract Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon diet drink, and one bottle fully equals in strength one gallon of Syrup Sarsaparilla or decoction, as usually made.

TESTIMONY FROM MAINE

Capt Daniel Abbott, Brooklin, Maine, July 16 1855 says "I was taken sick one year ago last April upon my passage from Havana to Charleston, S C At the latter place I took medicine and procured a physician, but for ten days could obtain no relief, no sleep or appetite At last taking up a newspaper having your advertisement of 'Hoofland's German Bitters' in it, I sent for some immediately This was about 10 o clock, at 11 o clock I took the first dose and another at 6 o clock The effect was so rapid on me that I had a good appetite for supper, and rested well that night and the next day found me a well man—I have not been without your medicine since, having been sailing between Baltimore, Charleston, and the West India Islands ever since. I have now given up going to sea and reside in this place where you should have an agency, as you could sell large quantities of it."

Jos B Hall & Co, Presque Isle, Aroostook Co, Maine April 24, 1854 say "We herewith send you a certificate of a cure performed by the use of only one bottle of the German Bitters We think Mr Clark to be a man of veracity, and have no doubt of the truth of his story"

Messrs Jos B Hall & Co—Gentlemen—In answer to your inquiries I will state that my daughter, aged about 16 years, has been complaining of a pain in her side for six or seven years, and about the first of January last was taken down and confined to her bed. The pain in her side was very severe, besides being troubled with pains between her shoulders and in her breast. From reading a number of cures performed by "Hoofland's German Bitters," I was induced to try them in her case, and sent to your store and purchased one bottle She had taken it but a few days when she began to improve, and now, after taking only one bottle, she is enjoying better health than she has for years.—She feels no pain in her side or in any part of her body, and attributes her cure entirely to the German Bitters

WILLIAM CLARK.

You should bear in mind that these Bitters are entirely vegetable, thereby possessing advantages over most of the preparations recommended for similar diseases
